

Exhibition Spaces

Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, TX, Moudy Gallery-located in the same building that houses TCU's School of Art, the Moudy Gallery showcases student work, including exhibitions by undergraduates and MFA students. This 900 square-foot space also functions as a responsive place for one-off or pop-up projects that students and faculty develop. TCU regularly shows its support for local professional artists by providing a collaborative environment in the Moudy Gallery as a testing ground for work-in-progress.

Studio Gallery, Brookhaven College, Dallas- The Studio Gallery, serves students in studio art and art history courses, the College community, and the larger community with a full annual schedule of diverse art exhibitions, supporting the understanding and creation of contemporary art. Concentrating primarily on innovative, significant works of contemporary art, exhibitions feature the work of regional and national professional artists, along with annual exhibitions by the art faculty and the studio art students of the College, enriching the aesthetic environment and comprising a cultural resource for the community.

Voertman's Gallery, Denton- Voertman's Gallery is an 'open submission' public gallery and community space in Denton, TX. Located in the historic Fry St. neighborhood, our focus is on the exhibition of contemporary art by local emerging and regional artists, as well as students of the neighboring College of Visual Arts and Design at the University of North Texas and Texas Women's University. Our mission is to help support Denton's creative arts communities by offering our space for the use of public art exhibitions, performances, community workshops, and to provide a space for open dialogue and sharing.

They also would like to share the following information for potential curators:

Four main themes of the current gallery season:

- Environmental Quality, Resilience and Health
- Water Security
- Ecological Connectivity and Urban Ecosystems
- Environmental Education

The gallery coordinator also shared the following statement:

"I think Ecological Connectivity and Urban Ecosystems could serve as a great organizing theme for an exhibition. I would imagine a lot of print makers are responding to their local environments, whether they be rural or urban and whether they feel connected or alienated it all fits."
